Energy Northwest’s Online Presence Recognized with Interactive Media Outstanding Achievement Award

RICHLAND, Wash. – Energy Northwest and Protiviti SharePoint Business Consulting Group have been recognized with an Outstanding Achievement award by the nonprofit Interactive Media Council, Inc. (IMC) for the agency’s recently redesigned website at www.energy-northwest.com.

The agency’s media recognition by IMC comes shortly after the launch of a new landing page – www.ColumbiaValue.com – to highlight the regional value of Columbia Generating Station, the agency’s flagship energy resource.

The Interactive Media Awards (IMA) recognize the highest standards of excellence in website design and development, using criteria based on design, content, feature functionality, usability and standards compliance. Protiviti was acknowledged in the ‘Utilities’ category for design of a website for its client Energy Northwest.

“The IMA award showcases our expertise in using SharePoint for an interactive, public-facing website. I attribute the IMA recognition to the productive partnership we enjoyed with the team at our client Energy Northwest,” said Protiviti’s Mike Steadman, managing director of the SharePoint Business Consulting Group. “Both the Protiviti SharePoint team and the people at Energy Northwest were thrilled to be selected for the Outstanding Achievement award this year.”

“An award such as this is indicative of the high standards of excellence at Energy Northwest that are vital to everything we do – from safety to website design,” said Pattie Lilly, Visual Communications supervisor at Energy Northwest. “We are proud of all of our awards and have a strong workforce of employees who strive to ensure excellence in every facet of their work every day.”
